ENROLLMENT IN STATE SCHOOLS DROPS SLIGHTLY

Gettysburg College Shows Fine Record For Year Despite Depression.

DECREASE ONLY 867 IN STATE

Full time and graduate students in Pennsylvania's fifty-four colleges and universities this year total only 867 less than in 1931-32, according to first semester enrollment figures compiled in the state department of public instruction. Last year there were 50,960 such students in the accredited colleges and this year there are 50,103. These figures do not include the many thousand part time or special students enrolled at the larger institutions, most of whom are not candidates for degrees.

Good Record Here

The enrollment at Gettysburg college last year was 587, while this year 550 enrolled for the first semester, a decrease of 37, the smallest throughout the state. For the second semester at least fifteen additional students will be enrolled, cutting the decrease to approximately 20.

Loss in enrollments is spread over thirty colleges and universities. Most of these appear to be in the western part of the state. Three institutions report no change, and twenty-one show gains in full time undergraduate and in graduate enrollments.

The University of Pennsylvania continues as the largest higher educational institution in the state, with 7,911 full time and graduate students seeking degrees. The University of Pittsburgh is second with 6,359 and Temple university is third with 5,586. The Pennsylvania State college ranks next with 4,745. Each of these institutions has a much larger net enrollment which includes part time, extension and summer session students.

This year's attendance of full time and graduate students at all Pennsylvania colleges and universities is reported to the department as follows:

Jail Man On Liquor Charge

Raymond T. Hardman, 25, Gettysburg R. 3, was arrested by Patrolman F. L. Mayers, of the local sub-station of the state highway motor patrol, Friday evening, on charges of disorderly conduct and driving a car without an operator's license.

Committed to the Adams county jail for the night, Hardman was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Neil W. Gibson this morning, who sentenced him to serve five days in jail in default of payment of a $5 fine and costs and an additional five days on the charge of driving without an operator's license.

According to officers, Hardman, who had been drinking, took the car of A. M. Sites, Fairfield, from in front of J. B. Waddle's store, Fairfield, where it was parked, without the owner's knowledge.

Hardman drove the machine a short distance from Fairfield, where it crashed into a fence. Afterward, the patrolman was summoned.

Sites' machine was not seriously damaged.

FAVORS CHANGE IN EDUCATION

Dr. H. W. A. Hanson Attends Annual Meeting Of State College Presidents.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, former president of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania, and a member of the special legislative committee of the organization attended the annual meeting of the association in the Penn-Harris hotel, Harrisburg, Friday.

Doctor Hanson declared that he favors changes in higher education in Pennsylvania especially regarding normal schools and their qualifications for awarding bachelor degrees.

Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel, president of Penn State, was elected president.

More than fifty delegates from approximately forty colleges and universities in Pennsylvania discussed problems concerning the training of teachers for high school. Reports were given showing the inroads that state teachers' school have been making upon the enrollment of liberal arts colleges and universities, especially since the adoption of four year courses in the teachers' colleges.

The legislative committee was authorized to represent the association in a conference with a committee of state teachers' colleges and Dr. James N. Rule, superintendent of public instruction, to work out a program of teachers training satisfactory to all groups. Doctor Rule later presented a general outline of the teacher training problem to the delegates.

Dr. George L. Omwake, president of Ursinus college, was re-elected secretary and treasurer of the association and Dr. Charles E. Beury, president of Temple university, was chosen as a member of the executive committee.

A committee will be appointed in the near future by the president to present a report at the next meeting which will be at Ursinus college, collegeville, on May 12, on the athletic policies of the organization. The fall meeting will be held at Dickinson college, Carlisle, on October 20.

Scouts Expected To Exceed Quota

Officers From York-Adams Area Are Elected But None Are From Adams County End.

There are 1,317 Boy Scouts in the Adams-York area and there is every indication that the 1933 goal of 1,800 members will be greatly exceeded, it was announced at a conference of scout leaders of the two counties at Trinity First Reformed church, York, Friday evening. It was the annual meeting and Francis Farquar, of York, was re-elected president of the council for the fifth consecutive term.

No one attended from Adams county and none of the officers or members of the executive board elected are from this county.

Hundred Couples At Junior Prom

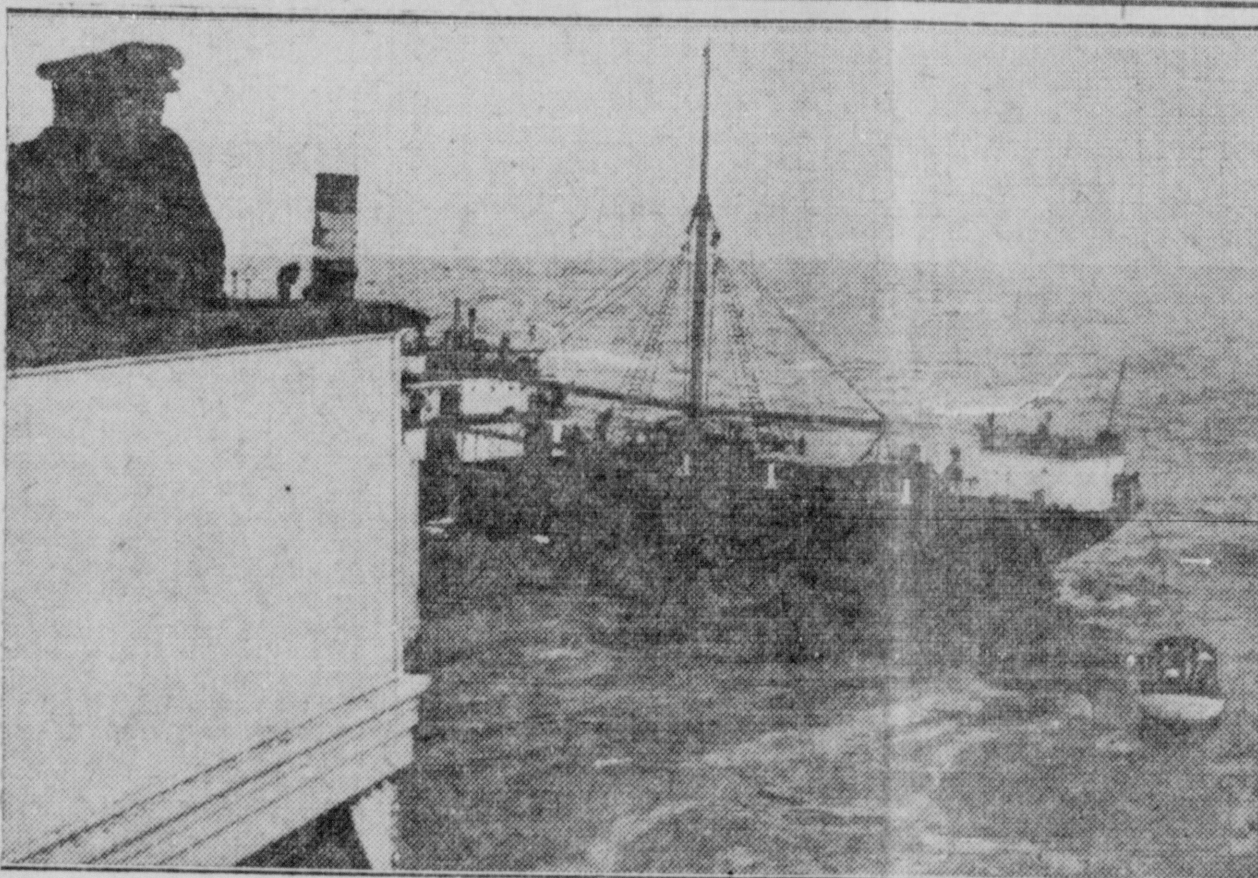

Approximately 100 couples attended the annual Junior Prom of Gettysburg college in the Eddie Plank memorial gymnasium, Friday night.

The Casa Loma orchestra rendered a pleasing program of dance selections for the evening's entertainment and the patrons of the annual social highlight of the college thoroughly enjoyed the prom.

There were visitors from nearby communities and many students escorted guests from their home towns.

GOTHAM MEDAL FOR CAPT. STEADMAN

New York, Friday, honored Capt. Giles C. Steadman, hero of the rescue of twenty-two survivors of the lost British freighter, Exeter City.

Captain Steadman blushed and stammered at his reception. The young skipper of the American Merchant stood stiff and straight in his spick and span blue uniform with its four old bars as Mayor O'Brien pinned on his chest a medal of valor. Captain Steadman said:

"In accepting this medal, I do so not as an individual, but as the representative of the officers and crew of the American Merchant."

News and Comment by THE EDITOR

HAVE you ever gone to the top of the hill on the Fairfield road a couple miles southwest of town on an evening when the sun is setting behind the South mountain and enjoyed the natural beauty the scene affords? No small part of the picture is the old stone arch bridge across Marsh creek at the foot of the hill.

A one-way bridge, a bit dangerous perhaps for traffic of high-speed automobiles with reckless drivers, these sturdy old arch bridges, like the covered bridges which are rapidly disappearing, link the present with the past in such a manner that older residents view their destruction to make way for wider and more modern bridges with genuine regret.

Just the same, they all seem doomed by the march of highway progress.

In this connection, it will be interesting to many motorists to learn that the stone arch bridge over the Conococheague creek along the Lincoln highway just west of Chambersburg is being demolished to make way for a new structure which will have a span of 80 feet and a width of 32 feet. Because of a hump in the middle of this particular stone bridge, as in the one on the Fairfield road, numerous accidents have occurred there. Last year there were 20. The new bridge is being built by the state highway department.

Several of the covered bridges remaining in Adams county have disappeared during the last year, including the one near Zora and two on the Gettysburg-Hanover road, one just southeast of Gettysburg and the other near the entrance to Brushtown.

Horace Crouse Enters Race For Tax Collector

Horace A. Crouse, 218 Baltimore street, today announced his candidacy for tax collector in Gettysburg, subject to the republican primary, September 19.

Born in Littlestown, a son of the late W. F. and Sarah Louise Crouse, Mr. Crouse has spent the greater part of his life in Gettysburg. For eighteen years, he has been employed in the W. F. Gilliland grocery store, Baltimore street, and for twelve years prior he was employed at Reichle's meat market.

A life-time republican, Mr. Crouse has never before sought public office. He is the second republican candidate for the position now held by William Ogden, Perry J. Tawney having announced his candidacy recently.

Woman Juror Becomes Ill When Men Smoke and Chew

With women serving on several juries in court this week, J. C. Hoke, tipstaff, enforced a new "code of conduct" for jurymen.

It has always been the custom of jurymen as soon as they enter the juryroom to light cigars, cigarettes and pipes or fill their mouths with tobacco and proceed to make themselves comfortable.

On a certain jury this week was a woman, who, while she did not object to smoking, became ill as the deliberations continued and the air in the jury room became blue with smoke.

As the deliberations continued with no sign of an agreement apparent, the woman asked to be excused.

Coming out into the fresher air of the rear corridor of the court house on the verge of tears, and eyes smarting from tobacco smoke, the woman asked Mr. Hoke to be allowed to walk about a while. The

Local Rotarians To Hear Roy D. Knouse

The district conference of Rotary clubs in this area will be held at Baltimore on April 24 and 25. A number of Gettysburg Rotarians are planning to attend the conference.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Marriage licenses were issued at the office of Clayton F. Palmer, clerk of the courts, today to George W. Krout, Abbottstown, and Miss Catherine Kinneman, Berwick township, and to John R. Long and Miss Blanche Fanus, both of York Springs.

Miss Eicholtz Is Retained Head Of Democratic Women

Miss Edna Eicholtz, North Stratton street, deputy register and recorder of Adams county, was re-elected president of the Adams county democratic women's club at the annual election meeting at the court house, Friday evening.

Other officers chosen include Mrs. Harvey Bollinger, Gettysburg, vice president; Mrs. John Sheffer, Gettysburg, secretary, and Mrs. Nicholas Redding, Gettysburg, treasurer.

Plans were made for a card party in February and a covered luncheon social in March. Neither date was set.

After the business meeting a social house was held and refreshments were served.

GIVE VERDICT FOR LOCAL BANK IN $900 SUIT

Jury Decides Against Philadelphia Concern In $900 Civil Action.

FILE MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

A verdict in favor of the defendants, the Gettysburg National bank and Simmons, Brittain and English, of Pittsburgh, was returned to Judge Donald P. McPherson at 7:50 o'clock, Friday evening, after the court had been re-convened specially to receive the verdict.

The Duplex Electric company, Philadelphia, plaintiff in the civil action which was tried on Friday, sought $900, with interest, from the bank and the Pittsburgh firm as the balance due on a $1,500 contract for the installation of a burglar alarm system at the Gettysburg National bank.

Henry M. Miller, Esq., of Philadelphia, who, together with C. E. Stahl, Esq., Gettysburg, represented the Duplex company, immediately made a motion for a new trial, and Judge McPherson instructed him to file written reasons within 20 days.

W. Clarence Sheely, Esq., J. Donald Swope, Esq., and J. L. Williams, Esq., all of Gettysburg, represented the bank and the Pittsburgh concern.

The jury was given the case at 4:55 o'clock, Friday evening. Before they retired for their deliberations, Judge McPherson said court would re-convene to receive the verdict if it was arrived at before 8 o'clock, Friday evening.

McPherson Sentences Five to Penitentiary And 7 to Jail Here

John Miller, Ellis Smith And Edward Vincent Draw Terms Of From Four To Ten Years Each For Robbing George Miller's Store; Pay Fines Of $1 And Costs.

EDWARD WATSON GETS 18 MONTHS TO FOUR YEARS IN EASTERN PEN

Five penitentiary and seven jail sentences were among those meted out to 24 defendants by Judge Donald P. McPherson in court this morning.

Wasting little time on any of the defendants, Judge McPherson set a record for speed in sentencing at today's session. The sentence court began at 9:30 o'clock and was concluded at 11 o'clock.

Three of the five defendants sentenced to the Eastern penitentiary, John Miller and Ellis Smith, both of Gettysburg, and Edward Vincent, Greenmount, charged with breaking into the grocery store of Miller's brother, George Miller, Chambersburg street, last December, each drew sentences of from 4 to 10 years in prison.

Miller and Smith both pleaded guilty to the offense, while Vincent was convicted in court earlier in the week.

Miller, who was on parole from the Eastern penitentiary, was directed to serve today's sentence concurrently with the remainder of his previous sentence from which he had been paroled.

Miller, Smith and Vincent were directed to pay fines of $1 each and the costs of prosecution.

Edward Watson, Biglerville, charged with breaking into S. G. Bigham's hardware store there last fall, also was sentenced to the Eastern penitentiary to serve from 18 months to four years. Watson changed his plea of not guilty to guilty during the course of his trial in court this week.

Rodney Smith, of Littlestown, charged with breaking into a Littlestown gasoline service station and the theft of an automobile, was sentenced to serve from one to three years in the Eastern penitentiary for each offense, the sentences to run concurrently.

Chester Lawrence, Gettysburg, who was associated with Smith in the two offenses, was sentenced to serve from nine to 18 months in the Adams county jail on each count, the sentences to run concurrently. Both Smith and Lawrence, who entered pleas of guilty, were ordered to restore the stolen property or its value and pay fines of $1 each.

Edward J. Hunter, Gettysburg, former member of the B. E. F. camp here, entered pleas of guilty to charges of illegal possession and transportation of liquor and driving while under the influence of liquor, and was sentenced to serve concurrent terms of 60 days in jail, pay a fine of $200 and the costs of prosecution.

Malcolm Clouser, of Littlestown, charged with driving a car while under the influence of liquor, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail, pay a fine of $200 and the costs.

McSherry Fined $100 George E. McSherry, Hagerstown, convicted in court this week on a charge of illegal possession and transportation of liquor, was ordered to pay a fine of $100 and the costs of prosecution. John W. Pohlman, Hanover, indicted jointly with McSherry, was returned to jail to appear for sentence next Tuesday.

A sentence of 60 days in jail, $100 fine and the costs was imposed upon Clarence Wagaman, Strasburg township, who pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a car while under the influence of liquor and illegal possession and transportation of liquor.

Ralph Sterne, Gettysburg, and Eugene McGrail, New York city, who entered pleas of guilty to charges of stealing coal, were ordered back to jail for sentence next week.

Harry T. Schriver, Gettysburg, charged with driving a car while under the influence of liquor, was sentenced to 60 days in jail and ordered to pay a fine of $100 and costs. He entered a plea of guilty.

Arrest Man For Shooting A Dog

Lester Wagaman, 26, of Franklin township, was arrested Friday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Blaine E. Bixler on a charge of shooting a fox hound belong to George Oyer, a fox of Franklin township.

Wagaman claims he killed the dog because it was chasing deer, while Oyer maintains the dog was after a fox.

Wagaman furnished bail in the sum of $200 for a hearing before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

CHIMNEY BLAZE

BANDIT USES GUN, KNIVES; IS STABBED

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—A man was killed and three others wounded during a wild melee in which bullets whistled and knives flashed in a Harlem speakeasy before dawn today. Screaming women and shouting men fled from the place leaving it littered with abandoned wraps and pocketbooks.

A regular weekly "racket" or dance was in full swing in the place when a gunman sauntered to a table where Peter Moran, owner of the resort, was sitting with two men and two women. Without warning he pulled out a gun and began firing.

Moran, wounded in the thigh, tumbled under a table. The next bullet hit David Feldman, 24, who staggered into a corner and died. Henry Clark, 28, another man at the proprietor's table, fell with a bullet in the head and then the gunman flung away his empty gun and started for a rear exit.

As panic swept the place several men closed in on the gunman. Near the entrance they got him down and jammed pen knives into his body again and again. Taken to a hospital he was identified as Joseph Fisher, 27.

3 Naval Officers Hurt In Explosion

Oakland, Calif., Jan. 28 (AP)—Two United States navy officers were near death here today and a third, removed to the Mare Island navy hospital, was seriously injured from steel fragments of an engine testing balance wheel which "exploded" during a demonstration. Lieutenant Charles E. McDonald, 30, and Lieutenant Kenneth Charles Iurd, 29, were the two physicians said who may die. Lieutenant Louis Dent Sharp, 28, was the third officer injured. A civilian, E. A. Smith, was less seriously hurt.

Two Premiers And Cabinets Crash Today

Berlin Jan. 28 (AP)—Chancellor Kurt Von Schleicher, heading the 20th cabinet since the establishment of the German republic, resigned today after governing only 56 days.

President Von Hindenburg called on former Chancellor Von Papen who preceded Von Schleicher instructing him to put together a cabinet which will be supported in the reichstag. Von Papen was not appointed chancellor but it appeared certain that either he or Adolf Hitler, leader of the "Nazis," would get the job.

The resignation of the entire Von Schleicher cabinet was accepted by the president.

General Von Schleicher realized from President Paul Von Hindenburg's refusal to invest him with power to dissolve the reichstag next Tuesday that he no longer enjoyed the confidence necessary to steer the ship of state solely on the president's authority in the face of a hostile reichstag.

Frenchman Falls

Paris, Jan. 28 (AP)—The government headed by the veteran bushy haired fighter Joseph Paul-Boncour resigned today a few hours after being overthrown on a taxation issue by a boisterous, shouting chamber of deputies.

The lid blew off with pressure against the government's program for balancing the budget by means of drastic economies and heavy new taxes.

President Albert LeBrun called for immediate consultation with party leaders in an effort to select a new premier.

Rocks Hurlled Hundred Yards By Angry Seas

Boston, Jan. 28 (AP)—Battered schooners and battered ocean greyhounds beat their way to storm shattered ports today as the worst nor'easter in recent years roared down the New England coast.

Many sections of Cape Cod were cut off from communication with the rest of the world and scores of families abandoned their homes to the early morning tide.

In Wintrop, the pounding of the surf against a broken sea wall, could be felt a mile inland and huge rocks were thrown hundreds of yards by the angry sea.

A hundred families moved from their homes in the dark of early morning as high water time approached.

Nantucket Lightship was off its station. The lightship, farthest eastern outpost of the North Atlantic, and first landfall of every vessel from Europe, was just about holding her own 30 miles southeast of her post.

At regular intervals the navy radio station at Newport, Rhode Island, and the operator aboard the lightship warned vessels that the dangerous Nantucket shoals were unguarded.

The fishing vessels on the banks were bearing the brunt of the storm today. The Gertrude N. Pauci radiophoned it was the worst storm it had ever experienced.

Coastal shipping remained in port and many trans-Atlantic craft anchored just within the protection of the harbor to wait until the storm passed.

Briton Confers With Roosevelt

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—Ambassador Lindsay, of Great Britain, headed southward by plane this forenoon to accept an invitation to confer with President-elect Roosevelt at Warm Springs, prior to his return to London on Tuesday to advise his government on the impending war debts discussion.

Sir Ronald was looking forward to the chance to sit with the next president in his Georgia cottage and was anxious to get the most definite information for guidance of his country in the bargaining of debts to be undertaken soon after March 4.

BLUES SINGER'S SON IS MISSING

Jack Morse, 16, Disappears While On Way Back To School.

New York, Jan. 28—The 16-year-old son of Lee Morse, blues singer, has been missing since January 8 and police all over the country have been asked to look for him.

This was disclosed Friday by the singer and her accompanist-husband, Robert Downey.

The boy, Jack, disappeared while en route from Savannah, Georgia, to Troy, New York. His mother and stepfather last saw him as he boarded a train at Savannah to return to the Rensselaer Polytechnic institute at Troy, after the Christmas holidays.

His parents believe they have traced him as far as New York. A Pullman porter said a youth answering Jack's description reached this city safely on January 8, "mind- ed his business all the way up and didn't talk to anybody." He was to have gone directly from the Pennsylvania railroad station to the Grand Central terminal to board a train for Troy.

Downey said they first learned of the boy's absence from school last Monday when classmates wrote that he had not returned from his vacation.

"He's either suffering from amnesia or is being detained somewhere against his will," Downey said.

The Missing Persons' bureau of the New York police department sent out a general alarm for the boy. He is six feet, one inch tall, weighs about 140 pounds and wears shell-rimmed glasses. When last seen he was carrying a drawing board, and wearing a brown overcoat and hat.

During a recent hazing at his school, the boy's hair was clipped short with the exception of one spot in the front of his head. He has blue eyes, and blond hair which is turning dark.

Ford Says Competitors Trying to Squeeze Him

Detroit, Jan. 28 (AP)—A statement published in the London Evening Standard quoting Henry Ford as attributing his suspension of work, rendering 160,000 men idle, to "certain of my competitors who are operating against me," was declared to be "substantially correct" Friday night by officials of the Ford Motor company.

(Associated Press Editor's Note: The London Standard quoted Mr. Ford as saying: "The actual truth is that certain bankers are trying to obtain control of the Ford concern." A member of Mr. Ford's staff said the motor magnate had told him that was not exactly correct.)

The officials commenting on the statement declined to permit use of their names. Neither would they attempt to elaborate on it nor promise any further comment from Mr. Ford.

6,000 Briggs Employees Walk Out When the Ford company announced its suspension Thursday, it stated it "no longer could continue production without bodies furnished by the Briggs Manufacturing company," whose plants were shut down early this week following a walkout of 6,000 employees.

The Standard quoted Mr. Ford as saying, in a trans-Atlantic telephone conversation, that "certain of his

MOVIE STARS INVITED HERE

Special Train To Carry Large Party From Coast To Washington, D. C.

Manager Mirisch, of the Majestic theatre, today announced that he had invited the Warner brothers "Inaugural Special," of moving picture stars, en route from the Pacific coast to Washington for the inauguration of President Roosevelt, to stop in Gettysburg.

If Mr. Mirisch's invitation is accepted fifteen men and women stars of the talkies will visit Gettysburg.

Among the stars who will travel from Hollywood to Washington in the "42nd Street Special" train, according to bookings up to date, are Bebe Daniels, Joe E. Brown, Ruby Keeler, James Cagney, William Powell, Warner Baxter, George Brent, Bette Davis, Joan Blondell, Guy Kibbee, Loretta Young, Warren William, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Ginger Rogers and Una Merkel.

The float appearing in the inaugural parade will be an elaborate one symbolizing "Better Times" and also 42nd street as the greatest theatrical street in the world. A number of the stars who will go to Washington on the "42nd Street Special," stopping at numerous leading cities for personal appearances en route, also appear in the cast of the new Warner brother feature picture, "42nd Street," which will soon be released. The entire delegation of motion picture players from Hollywood will go to New York on March 5, the day after the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

SNOWBALL LOSES GAME

San Martin, Cal. (AP)—A spectator tied up the baseball game between San Martin and Cottage Grove when he tossed a snowball into the infield. San Martin was trailing, 1 to 3, when a San Martin batter sent up a pop fly. At the same time a snowball was hurled from the stands and instead of catching the baseball, the fielder snagged the snowball. Two men scored.

BULLETS LOSE TO MOUNT 42-15

Emmitsburg Outfit Demonstrates Fast Pacing And Shooting Game.

Mt. St. Mary's flashy basketball team gave the Gettysburg college cagers a lesson in the art of shooting and passing in their game on the Mountaineer court Friday night, walloping the Orange and blue quintet, 42-15, before a packed house.

At no stage of the game did the Bullets so much as threaten Coach Malloy's flashing pentagon. From start to finish it was all Mt. St. Mary's, the Mountaineers flashing a dazzling offense which the locals were helpless to stop on the small court.

Hopkins opened the scoring with a field goal and the Blue and White aggregation rolled up eight points before Howard landed a goal for the Bullets. Coach Bream's stalwarts were completely bottled up by the strong enemy defense. Cardell and Chanowski scintillated during the half with some pretty one-handed stabs to give the Mountaineers a 21-4 lead at half time.

The Orange and Blue lads improved somewhat at the start of the final round, but the rally was shortlived and the Malloy-coached tribe continued its scoring spree.

Gettysburg, while handicapped somewhat by small playing space, put up a poor exhibition. The defense was particularly loose and the offense was far below par. The Bullets gave a drab exhibition from the foul line by caging only three of thirteen charity throws.

McMillan and Flynn were the only Bullets who carried a punch, while Hopkins and Chanowski put up brilliant games for the victors.

BOMB KILLS MOTHER OF 4

Home Of Prominent Philadelphia Italian Is Wrecked By Explosion Today.

Philadelphia, Jan. 28 (AP)—An explosion attributed by police to an anti-Fascist bombing today killed Mrs. John M. Di Silvestro, wife of the supreme master of the Order of the Sons of Italy in the United States, injured at least 12 other persons and demolished the Di Silvestro home.

Di Silvestro, an attorney and former Italian consul here, was not at home at the time of the blast, but arrived about five minutes later, to find the place in ruins and rescuers searching for his family.

Mrs. Di Silvestro's body was recovered this morning from the cellar of the house. The injured are four of the Di Silvestro children, Arnold, 18; Helen, 14; Anita and Gloria, 11-year-old twins; Miss Marie Guernio, governess and secretary, and at least seven other persons, occupants of nearby residences.

Hospital authorities said none of the injured was in a serious condition. Fortunately for the victims no fire followed the blast.

Police said the blast was caused by a bomb apparently placed inside the house. Internal strife existed inside the Order of the Sons of Italy. Di Silvestro is a close friend of Mussolini.

Pinochle Contest Begins Wednesday

The Gettysburg Pinochle club and the Molly Pitcher club of Carlisle will begin a series of pinochle matches next Wednesday evening. The first match will be played in Gettysburg. There will be dinner at Hotel Gettysburg for the 16 contestants at 6:30 o'clock after which play will take place at the residence of Herbert L. Grimm, 251 Springs avenue.

The Carlisle players will comprise President Judge Fred S. Reese, William H. Goodyear, Lyman G. Hertzler, Dr. William R. Shearer, Mervin G. Coyle, Jacob M. Goodyear, Esq., Raymond H. Zinn and J. William Cole.

The Gettysburg club comprises Henry T. Bream, Robert Hartley, George Bester, Robert Eisinger, Paul Singmaster, Paul L. Roy, C. Richard Wolff and Herbert L. Grimm.

Jacob M. Goodyear is captain of the Carlisle team and Henry T. Bream of the Gettysburg team. In the absence of Captain Bream Wednesday evening on a basketball trip, George Bender will be acting captain and Carl J. Peduzzi or Henry M. Scharf will substitute in his playing position.

Charles Small, Berwick township, charged with the larceny of several small turkeys, entered a plea of guilty and was placed on probation for one year. He also was ordered to reimburse the owner for the turkeys and pay the costs.

Charles Cross, colored, Gettysburg, indicted on two charges of stealing wood, was sentenced to serve from six months to one year in jail on each count, the sentences to run concurrently. He also was ordered to pay a fine of $1 and the costs.

Cross, who has been in jail since October 7, 1932, was ordered to serve the sentence from the date of his arrest.

Here and There

an even break when the battle of the ballots is in progress. For the republicans in power seem to be constantly striving to ruin the adversary's chances of victory.

In the old Adams-York congressional district, the democrats always had a fighting chance in normal times, and probably divided the honors of victory at the polls. Then, the republican legislators, reapportioning congressional districts, tacked Franklin county, which is normally two to one republican, on to this district—a serious handicap to the democrats.

And what little chance in normal times the democrats have had of electing a state senator from the Adams-Franklin senatorial district is now threatened with complete obliteration by a bill introduced in the state legislature by Senator Harris, of Pittsburgh, to tack Cumberland county, likewise strongly republican, onto the already normally republican Adams-Franklin district.

But there is a solace for democratic leaders in the news from Harrisburg that Senator Harris' bill, which is the same one he introduced in the 1931 legislature, is likely to be sidetracked, as it was two years ago, because there are so many other matters of greater importance demanding attention and because, also, of "the complexity of the political picture of the state and an evident desire not to make it any more like a jig-saw puzzle than it is."

Vicks Introduce New Mouth Wash

Greensboro, N. C., Jan. 28.—The House of Vicks, famous for its various household preparations and plan for better control-of-colds, has its own way of overcoming depression. Instead of retrenching, it expands. It employs more people, spends more money on its research division in developing new products; more money for advertising them. This, in turn, requires the purchase of more raw materials, and helps other business in allied lines.

Recently Vicks introduced a new product, Vicks Vaseline Antiseptic. In its production, and in preparation for its marketing, thousands of people were given new or extra employment. Three weeks ago, 132 carloads of this new mouthwash and gargle went out through wholesale druggists to America's 60,000 drug stores. In each carload, there was an added slice of prosperity for bottle makers, glass manufacturers, carton makers, cap manufacturers, printers, engravers and others.

Buying Barbara

By Julia Cleft-Addams

SYNOPSIS:—Farrell Armitage has launched Mark Lodely as an artist, and has arranged a cure for his crippled body. He has had the promise of Mark's fiancée, Barbara Quentin, that he may have a year in which to do these things, so that she may choose between the two men unhampered by pity. But Barbara and Mark have broken off; Barbara, in gratitude, offers to marry Farrell, who refuses a "consolation prize." Patsy Raoul, actress, hired by Leila Cane to precipitate a quarrel between Mark and Barbara, is telling Farrell's old guardian, the Vicar of Upper Mallard, about her activities.

Chapter 42

PATSY DOES A DANCE

In the Upper Mallard vicarage the lamp was lit, but it was placed in a curious position for a lamp. It was on the floor. It illumined mainly the feet and long legs of Miss Patsy Raoul as she danced, singing in her queer, husky voice a song of the vineyards and the sun. The vicar, in a chair at the other end of the room, applauded delightedly.

"Splendid! Splendid! You know, I have the pleasant feeling that I couldn't possibly approve of that song if my French were less rusty; but fortunately I only understand one sentence in five. What a swinging, stamping tune! You're giving one old man a lot of pleasure, Miss Raoul."

"Why not?"

"I don't know why not," admitted the vicar, sucking contentedly at his pipe, "but one is supposed to say that kind of thing. Personally, I've always imagined that when a creative artist feels the wish for an audience, it's immaterial whether it consists of one old man or a hundred young ones."

Patsy Raoul picked up the lamp and brought it over to the table by the fire.

"Men make me the more good audience as women," she remarked, curling herself into a chair like a snake. "I like not any women ever. Only Barbara."

She grinned and forgot to sound foreign. "The first time I met her, she fainted dead away. In the Park I told her afterwards my face had made people scream now and then, but it had never actually knocked anyone senseless before."

"I'm glad you like Barbara. She needs a friend."

"She's only to lift a finger and she can have the best friendship in the world. Farrell Armitage—"

"And I'm glad you like Farrell Armitage."

Miss Raoul looked defiant. "What do you mean? He doesn't like me. I got wrong with him at the start—tried to sting him for a couple of dogs. Only vanity, you know; I could easily have afforded two tykes, even without my legacy."

"You're enjoying your legacy?"

"What do you think? It's extremely pleasant, being rich."

"It is, indeed," agreed Mr. Frere. "I'm very rich myself."

Miss Raoul stared round the meagre room with her small, black eyes; eventually they returned to her host's composed face, fine as a cameo in the firelight. Her throat ached suddenly.

Oh, to be free, like this old man, of the pull and urge of life! To have a calm mind, to know the heights and depths only through the hearts of others, to dip so small a cup at the fountain of human love that always it is full to the brim! She said restlessly.

"A poor old friend died and left me his—her whole bag of tricks. I mayn't touch the capital—I must say that seems to me spoiling the ship for a half penny's worth of tar, but the trustees say they'll make me any advance within reason on the income. And so long as it's my reason that's to be our standard of measurement, well, I'm not complaining."

She hooked one leg over the arm of her chair and lit a cigarette. Her green and crimson woollen suit made her look like some mediaeval jester.

"You must come and see my show in Town," she added irrelevantly. "Come and stay with me when Barbara has re-done my house. I wish you would."

"It is very gracious of you to ask me. But I might offend Farrell. I always accept his hospitality when I need a little change." He smiled at her. "We shall both come and see you act." After a pause, he added gently—"You have your art, you know. You must not ask more of life."

"Mustn't I?"

"Well, if you do," said the vicar with one of his abrupt dives into practical common sense, "you won't in my opinion, get it. Isn't it rather late for Barbara to be roaming the country-side by herself?"

Miss Raoul cocked her head attentively and presently rose to look between the curtains. She stood swearing softly to herself, as she always did when she was intent on anything.

"There's a car," she said presently. "I think it's Farrell Armitage's. What d'you bet he has been roaming the country-side with her?"

The vicar sighed a little. Miss Raoul came back from the window. She asked—

"You don't think she'll ever stop caring for Little-Cad-Mark?"

"I don't think so. No. Love roots deep, with her."

"Good job Leila paid me only to vamp him, then, not marry him!" And, as the vicar looked lost—"But that's how I first came into it—I thought you knew! She offered me a hundred to work up an affair with Mark—help him to get thoroughly bored with Barbara, you know—"

"With Barbara, your friend?"

"I hadn't met her then. Leila always spoke of Mark's girl and the decorator-girl as two separate people. Tact, I s'pose. Or salesmanship! She's got an eye for a bargain-basement, has Leila."

"Leila, your hostess?"

"She even wanted to pay me by results, like a matrimonial agency! But, of course, I made it fees in advance and my word of honor that I'd earn 'em."

"Your word of honor," echoed Mr. Frere. "Yes, I see."

"What d'you mean? I kept it, didn't I? I handled Mark all right; the da Capo—that's a restaurant where his lot mostly goes—was simply cackling about us before he faded off to heaven knows where! Look here, tell you what I'll do—"

She dropped back into her chair in a sudden lassitude.

"I'll return Leila her money. I can see you think it was shoddy of me to take it. Oh, but I will! I'd like to please you. And I'd like Farrell Armitage to get what he wants, too. I'd rather help him for nothing, now I come to think of it."

"You'd feel the same," she challenged. "Can't we work together, somehow, and fix things for him?"

"I'm afraid not." The gentle finality was like a knell. "You and I, my dear, must share this fear of seeing one we love left empty-handed by life. We shall both need fortitude."

"Fortitude be—! I'll wring Barbara's neck!"

The vicar was chuckling over this remedy when the door opened and Farrell Armitage came in.

"Allo, 'allo!" Miss Raoul welcomed him. "You not do know I am here and you shock dead, no?"

"He'd have shocked deader if he had come in time to hear your song," said Mr. Frere. He looked affectionately up into Armitage's face. "Well, Farrell?"

"Everything's all right, sir, homestly."

"I'm very glad to know it, my dear boy."

"What have you done with Barbara?" shrieked Miss Raoul.

"She got her feet wet on the sands, so she's changing."

"She goes up to London tomorrow," said the vicar tranquilly, "with Leila and Miss Raoul. Or that was the plan. But if you are returning yourself, perhaps you will take her by road; and see that she gets comfortably to her hotel."

I'm a little anxious—both Miss Raoul and I are a little anxious about her."

The door opened behind her and Armitage turned eagerly, but it was Leila Cane who entered and came up to the fire. The vicar greeted her; there was an instant's pause and then the vicar spoke again:

"What," asked the vicar, stirring faintly in his chair, "what of Mark, lately? Is he still in your house, Farrell, or not?"

Armitage told them what there was to tell of Mark.

"Mark—Mark cured? Mark well? Oh God! Mark well?"

It was a ragged cry, horribly startling, torn from Leila who had been so smooth, so sure.

She dropped stick and gloves in a final devastating clatter as she got to her feet; and then they heard her make her fumbling way out of the room and out of the house.

SARAZEN'S NEW GOLF CUP DRAWS MUCH CRITICISM

American Officials Asked To Experiment With 8-inch Hole.

By Alan Gould

There will be a good deal of official scoffing of Gene Sarazen's radical suggestion for increasing the size of the golf cup from 4½ to 8 inches, but old John Duffer and his pals, it seems to me, will be very much in favor of experimenting with it to see whether it would really be as helpful as it sounds.

The answer to the official scoffers is: why not experiment with a larger cup?

The esteemed gentlemen who are pledged to safeguard the sanctity of the royal and ancient game were sufficiently radical to do a lot of experimenting with the size and weight of the ball.

Not content with that, our American authorities defied the parental British rules by sending up the "balloon ball." Then they hauled it down, as a result of insurrection in the ranks, and sent up another one, heavier but still the "balloon" size of 1.68 inches in diameter.

So, if the larger ball is here to stay, as now seems likely, why not be consistent and enlarge the cup?

Farrell Agic' It

Would be satisfied to compromise on a six-inch cup, as a means toward ending a few of our worries on the greens, but Johnny Farrell thinks a larger hole would have too much tendency to standardize the proceedings.

As one of our better putters, Johnny doesn't believe the larger cup would increase very much the percentage of putts dropping from 25-30 feet or more. As he sees the prospect, on the other hand, the player who failed to reach the green would be able to chip up more often to halve the hole.

Maybe so, but that also is worth an experiment to see what actually is likely to happen with a bigger cup.

A Sinister Suggestion

Meanwhile, my friends, shudder at the suggestion of Dave Thomson, professional at the Washington Golf and Country club, as outlined to Walter McCallum in the Washington Star.

Thomson would decrease the size of the hole, instead of enlarging it. "Let 'em try a cup of about 2½ inches, barely big enough for the ball to drip in and they will really have something that will put a premium on putting skill," he suggests.

"Then we will see where the man who really knows how to putt will get the advantage that is rightfully his. Any one ought to be able to knock a 6 or 8 foot putt into an 8 inch cup."

"If a pro missed a 6-foot putt by 8 inches he would go out somewhere and do a lot of practicing. As it is now, when we miss a 6-foot putt by an inch or two, we give ourselves a mental kick in the pants."

Somebody should give Dave and Walter a mental kick before this sinister idea spreads.

Only Five On Floor At End Of Cage Game.

Urbana, Ill. (AP)—How's this for a basketball belief—let it or not? A game in the school division of a high school tournament near here came to an end with only five players on the floor!

Homer and Allerton schools were playing, the latter team having only six lads in uniform because of a "flu" epidemic. First, one Allerton player was banished for having four personal fouls and the lone reserve entered the fray.

As the game wore on two more Allertonians were banished for fouls. Whereupon the Homer coach big-heartedly withdrew two of his players, and the game proceeded with two three-man "quintets" fighting it out.

Then, with only a few minutes left, another Allertonian was evicted for commission of his fourth personal. Homer won.

One Killed, Three Hurt In Collision

Laurel, Md., Jan. 28 (AP)—One man was killed and three injured early Friday in a head-on collision between a produce truck and an automobile on the Washington boulevard near here.

The man killed was William H. Franke, 60, a truck farmer of Hyattsville.

The injured are: Carl Franke, 21, son of the elder Franke; Salvador Navaria, 29, and Pedro Vincenti, 21. They were treated for lacerations and bruises at the Casualty hospital, Washington.

Police were unable to learn how the crash occurred.

Services are held each evening at 7:30 o'clock with concluding services Saturday evening, February 4, with the exception of Saturday evening, January 28, when there will be no services.

Church services at the local Methodist Episcopal church January 29 are: Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.; service of worship at 10:30 a. m. The Rev. R. B. Dysart is the pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Luther Baltzley and Mrs. Luther Wetzel were guests Sunday afternoon at the home of Ketterman brothers, McKnightstown R. D., where they visited their aunts, Mrs. Sarah Ketterman and Mrs. Charlotte Lady, who are spending some time at the Ketterman home.

Miss Mary Musselman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Z. Musselman, and Miss Arlene Benner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Benner, Virginia Mills, will leave Saturday for Goshen, Indiana, where Miss Benner will enroll as a freshman in Goshen college, while Miss Musselman will finish her senior year. Miss Benner is a graduate of Gettysburg high school, class of 1932.

Miss Margaret Biesecker and Rhoda Byer, of Harrisburg, spent the week-end at their homes here.

Miss Reba Lochbaum is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Warren, Gettysburg.

Miss Margaret Donaldson is visiting her niece, Mrs. Clifford Naugle, Gettysburg.

Miss Ruby Mickley is spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Heintzleman. A son was born to the Heintzlemans Monday. Miss Cora Boyer, of Biglerville, will assume the duties of Miss Mary Musselman as secretary of the Ortanna canning company.

Luther Wetzel and son, Paul, and Miss Ruby Mickley spent last Saturday evening with friends in Fairfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Cahrls Ogden and son, Lindbergh, of Bendersville, spent Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Ogden's mother, Mrs. Jennie Pepple.

Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Kepner and family spent last Saturday evening with friends in Hanover.

Many relatives and friends from here attended funeral services at Flohr's church on Thursday for Mrs. Samuel Weikert, who died at the Waynesboro hospital Tuesday. Mr. Weikert is a son of Mrs. Annie Weikert, Ortanna R. 1.

Luther Wetzel is confined to his home with gripe.

John Wetzel spent the week-end at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. Luther Baltzley.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pepple and daughter, Gaila, and Mrs. Catharine Pepple spent Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Pepple, Gettysburg.

John Herring returned home after spending some time in Hagers-town.

Miss Mildred Naugle was a recent overnight guest of Miss Ellen Morgan, Cashtown.

HOUSE TOLD OF LOANS BY R. F. C.

Dawes' Bank Received $90,000,000 On Two Payments; Railroads Aided.

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—The house of representatives and the country were told in detail today—despite strenuous objections from reconstruction members—just how that huge federal relief agency pledged $1,195,000,000 in five months to help industry try to get on an even keel.

In compliance with a special resolution adopted by the house the corporation sent to Speaker Garner a statement showing each loan authorized by the R. F. C. between the date of its creation on February 2, 1932, and July 21, 1932.

The latter loans have been made public monthly since July.

The report divulged that the much discussed loan to the Chicago Central Republican bank and trust company with which Charles G. Dawes was associated amounted to $90,000,000. It was advanced in two installments last June two days apart, the first amounting to $16,000,000 and the second to $74,000,000. Railroads were also aided, being told they could borrow $224,147,000. Of this $32,500,000 was allowed the B. & O. and $27,500,000 went to the Pennsylvania.

SOUTHWEST COACHES O. K. NEW CAGE RULES

Dallas, Tex. (AP)—Southwest conference coaches find little if any fault with the new basketball rules under which their charges will play this winter.

Many believe the 10-second rule compelling a player to pass the ball across the middle line will enliven the game and call for faster contests.

"So long as rules are written, some will be good and others bad, but we will play by them," commented Coach Jimmy Kitts, of Rice institute.

Other tutors were equally unperturbed by the changes.

Hospital Benefit.—The Thursday club, composed of town women, will entertain at cards, February 16, at Mrs. Guyon Buehler's residence, Carlisle street, for the benefit of the Warner hospital. The committee of charge consists of Mrs. Edward H. True, chairman; Mrs. J. McCrea Dickson, Miss Annie O'Neal, Mrs. S. S. Neely, Mrs. J. E. Musselman, Mrs. Clarence Sheely and Mrs. C. Ross Shuman.

Kept Wedding Secret.—Mr. and Mrs. Clement A. Hartman, of Cash-town, today announced the marriage of their daughter, Hope, to Charles Morgan, at Bisbee, Arizona, in August of last year. Mrs. Morgan kept her marriage a secret at that time. The wedding took place during the bride's vacation at Bisbee, after the close of the Flagstone normal school, where she was a student. Mrs. Morgan is an alumnus of the Arendsville Vocational school, class of 1919, and has been teaching in Arizona for the last two years. The bridegroom is owner and operator of a gold mine at Don Luis, Arizona. They will reside at Don Luis.

Camp's Founding Is Celebrated.—In celebration of the tenth anniversary of its founding, twenty members of the Marsh Creek hunting camp was entertained Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Thomas, York street. Annual election of officers for the camp also took place at this meeting.

Marsh creek hunting camp was organized in 1913 with fourteen members. Of the original members seven still belong to the camp. They are J. W. Bream, C. A. Bream, R. D. Bream, J. Allen Deardorff and W. H. Cullison, Cashtown, and Clyde L. Bream and F. Mark Bream, Gettysburg.

Officers were elected as follows: J. Allen Deardorff, Cashtown, president; Clyde L. Bream, Gettysburg, vice president; Paul J. Lower, McKnightstown, treasurer and commissary officers; F. Mark Bream.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

The Lord shall bring upon thee, and upon thy people, and upon thy father's house, days that have not come, from the day that Ephraim departed from Judah; even the king of Assyria.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall hiss for the fly that is in the uttermost part of the rivers of Egypt, and for the bee that is in the land of Assyria.

And they shall come, and shall rest all of them in the desolate valleys, and in the holes of the rocks, and upon all thorns, and upon all bushes.

In the same day shall the Lord shave with a razor that is hired, namely, by them beyond the river, by the king of Assyria, the head, and the hair of the feet: and it shall also consume the beard.

And it shall come to pass in that day that a man shall nourish a young cow and two sheep;

And it shall come to pass, for the abundance of milk that they shall give, he shall eat butter: for butter and honey shall every one eat that is left in the land.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that every place shall be, where there were a thousand vines at a thousand silverlings, it shall even be for briers and thorns.

With arrows and with bows shall men come thither; because all the land shall become briers and thorns.

And on all hills that shall be digged with the mattock, there shall not come thither the fear of briers and thorns: but it shall be for the feeding forth of oxen, and for the breeding of lesser cattle.—Isaiah 7:17-25.

Hi Y Organizes on Monday Night.—High school students to the number of thirty, meeting with a committee from the college Y. M. C. A., will hold a bean supper at St. James church, following which the question of organization will be taken up and the Hi Y club in the high school here will become a reality.

Went on Sleigh Ride.—Members of the Acorn club of Gettysburg and invited guests participated in a sleigh ride to Biglerville Thursday evening, where they were served a chicken and waffle supper. After the supper dancing was indulged in. Those in the party were Misses Maude Whiteleather, Ruth Jones, Emilie Scharf, Lottie Raffensperger, Katherine Hummelbaugh, Ruth Raffensperger, Effie Singley, Ethel Culp, Madeline Diehl and Dorothy Poth, and Glenwood Shetter, Frank Shambach, Ralph Rebert, Ralph Stern, Robert Geiselman, William Troxell and Mr. Cluck and Mr. Stauffer, of Gettysburg college.

Majestic Club Scores on Stage.—Before an audience that filled the Lincoln Way theatre Wednesday night the 1922 Majestic club Follies cast scored a decided hit in the first elaborate home talent production attempted by the club.

The cast of characters follows: Majestic Roof scene, Willie Jump, Harold Mumper; Sam Slufoot, Carl S. Menche; Mose Moretips, Percy Miller; Sue, Miss Dorothy Crouse; Flossie Flapper, Miss Grace Ramer; Issy Gohn, E. W. Stallsmith; the director, Grayson Peters; Spanish dancers, Miss Ruth Stallsmith and Miss Mildred Myers; Hindoo magician, Richard Codori; his assistants, John Rummel and John Raffensperger.

In the Chorus
Ponies: Juanita Ross, Beatrice Minter, Thelma Adair, Kathryn Sheads, Madeline Culp, Edith Minter, May Reinecker, Ethel Clapsaddle.

Senoritas: Miriam Hartzell, Evelyn Thomas, Pauline Weaver, Helen Hummer, Marguerite Rogers, Anna Geiselman.

Toreadors: Monroe Weiser, Lester Scott, Edgar Moser, Lawrence Sheads, Arthur Buehler, Bernard Partridge.

Ladies: Mary Ramer, Annetta Miller, Louise Keller, Catherine Musser, Ella Wisler.

Men: Brady Armour, J. C. Jarboe, Curtis Klinefelter, Clarence Steinhorn, Sylvester McKenrick.

For "Nana," a Broadway escapade: Ebenezer Grubb, Grayson Peters; Mrs. Ebenezer Grubb, Miss Mary Ramer; Alice Darling, Miss Dorothy Crouse; Benjamin Hodges, Horace Armour; Jonathan Trot, Fred Pfeffer; Henry McArthur, Lawrence Sheads; Susan, Miss Ellen Tipton; Adolphus Fitz Williams, Murray Miller; Nana, Miss Ruth Stallsmith.

For mal—Mr. and Mrs. Stanton House, formerly of Benderville, announce the birth of a son, Oliver Perry House, on January 10, at Harrisburg. Mrs. House before marriage was Miss Ruth Gettler of Biglerville.

Mr. and Mrs. George March, York street, announce the birth of a son, on Saturday.

Miss Mildred Horner, of Norwalk, Connecticut, is spending some time at Woodside farm, Straban township, as the guest of Miss Elizabeth McIlhenry.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas, York street, announce the birth of a son, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Scott have announced the birth of a daughter on Saturday evening.

Charles Hemier, Carlisle street; Paul Shealer, York street, and Floyd Lauver, North Stratton street, left Wednesday morning by motor for Miami, Florida. They expect to establish themselves in the garage business there.

Miss Bess Kelly, York street, is spending some time in Philadelphia with friends.

Mrs. Gertrude Brame Musselman and son, Clifford, of Harmon, Illinois, are visiting friends and relatives in Fairfield, Gettysburg and vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Myers, of Staten Island, are spending several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gervus Myers, North Stratton street.

Mrs. Calvin Baltzley, of Fairfield, is ill at her home with diphtheria. Her condition is not regarded as serious.

Misses Sara and Amelia Butt are spending the week-end in Sunbury. Edward Pfeffer, Baltimore street, is confined to his home by gripe.

Mrs. Ruth Spangler and daughter, Arlene, have returned home after spending some time with friends at Blue Ridge Summit and Waynesboro.

Dr. Frank E. Kramer, of Gettysburg, scoutmaster of a troop of Boy Scouts here, addressed a group of 35 scoutmasters in Hanover on the problems which patrol leaders face under various phases of scout work.

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Burgoon, Springs avenue, have returned home after spending a week in Atlantic City.

SIX-POUND GIRL BORN TO MRS. ABBIE BOOTH
New Haven, Conn., Jan. 28.—A six-pound, thirteen-ounce baby girl was born to Mrs. Albert Booth, wife of the former famous football player, Abbie Booth, at the St. Raphael's hospital. Mother and baby were reported to be "doing nicely" by Doctor Seymour, the family physician.

Kreuger's Friend Tells Of Finding Body in Paris

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—Details of Ivar Kreuger's death and a description of his body when it was discovered after he committed suicide in Paris last March were contained in a transcript presented at the bankruptcy hearing for International Match corporation Wednesday.

The transcript, which recorded the testimony given in Paris by Kristor Littorin, a close associate of the Swedish match king and a member of the Kreuger and Toll executive committee, set forth that two other persons besides Littorin viewed the body.

James N. Rosenberg, counsel for the trustee in bankruptcy, presented the transcript at a hearing before Federal Referee Oscar W. Erhorn presumably to dispel rumors that Kreuger still lives and that a wax dummy was sent to Stockholm for burial.

Littorin, examined by Rosenberg last September 19, said he went to Kreuger's apartment after several fruitless telephone calls to find out what was delaying him from attending a business conference.

"I took Miss Bokman, his secretary, along," he said, "and when we came there his housekeeper, Mlee. Jeanette, opened the door. I said, 'Is Mr. Kreuger in?' She said, 'Yes, but he's sound asleep. The telephone has been ringing and he doesn't answer it.' I went in. The blinds of his room were drawn.

"I opened the blinds and there he was on the bed with a pistol shot in his heart. He was lying on his back absolutely straight, with a revolver on the bed beside him by his left hand."

Q—"Was he left handed?"
A—"No, but he had shot himself with the left and because we saw blood on his left wrist."

Q—"Was there any letter?"
A—"Yes, he had left a letter for me and a letter for Mr. Sune Schele and one for his sister, Britta."

The letter to Littorin was entirely personal, the witness said, which began "as I have made such a mess of things, I think this is the best solution for everybody concerned," and ended "Good-by, and thanks."

Littorin said he returned to the Hotel du Rhin to tell the waiting bankers what had happened.

"They were just having lunch," he said, "and asked me to stay and have a bite before going back to the police."

Littorin then said he did not know whether any one had cabled the news to New York. Asked whether Miss Bokman had seen the body, Littorin said:

"Yes, Miss Bokman and Mlle. Jeanette, the housekeeper, came to the apartment."

INFLUENZA WAVE Begins To Recede
The influenza situation in Pennsylvania which for a number of weeks has caused concern is apparently definitely receding, according to a report submitted today by Dr. J. Moore Campbell, director of the state health department's bureau of communicable diseases, to Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health.

"The flare-up in Pennsylvania has been following the national trend," Doctor Campbell said. "For the past two weeks there is every indication that the peak has been reached and that the number of cases are gradually diminishing."

"While the present influenza epidemic has not developed the disease in its severest form, there have nevertheless been many more deaths from its complications as compared with a normal year's experiences. In all probability four or six weeks will yet be required before the epidemic has run its course."

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MISSED THINGS
OUR life is all too spotted up with regrets, moanings over what we have missed. While youth has its day more things, than at any other period of life, are missed—because youth is always in a hurry to get somewhere.

We get perspective when we have lived a little, and from that perspective we are enabled to appraise more accurately, and fewer of the joys of life are allowed to pass ungrasped. I read books today that I regret I did not read a long time ago—because of the inspiration and gladness that they now bring. A great observer of life has stated that "the failure to cultivate the power of peaceful concentration is the greatest single cause of mental breakdown."

Evening after evening I have sat with my twin boys in a room of utter silence—each of us concentrating upon a beloved book. I have often paused, unbeknown to them, in my reading and reflected upon the satisfaction that in that peaceful and enjoyable concentration on the part of each, probably lies his own assurance of a successful and happy life, no matter into what stream each may throw his talents or desires.

Many of our warmest friendships are made in later life. We are able then to take advantage of qualities that might not have been apparent had we known them in earlier life.

Life is a river of compensations. Like walking along the banks of such a stream in wild nature, we see new, interesting and instructive things that nourish our understanding.

Our best measure of happiness must be computed from the gains of our latest hour. All else is merely storage, from which we may never have the urge to take. The missed things of life must be allowed to pass a cloud. The heart must be lightened by the sun that streams gloriously into our hearts here and now.

The missed things! Ah, yes. But think of the joy and thrills that yet may be ours—the undiscovered, the unrevealed, the glories hidden from us—but on their way!

LILIAN HARVEY GIVEN WELCOME BY NEW YORKERS

Small English Actress Arrives in United States To Make Films.

By William Gaines

New York—Most newcomers are thrilled about New York, but few of them grow as panegyric as Lilian Harvey, darling of the European screen.

"It's all so enormous," said little Miss Harvey, "so swift and invigorating."

"Persons who come back from New York and tell us, over there, what a city this is—why, they never could give us a true picture."

She just loved it all, she said, and found New Yorkers so friendly.

New Yorkers can be mighty friendly to a pretty actress who is given a Garbo-Dietrich ballyhoo for her stip-end en route to Hollywood.

Miss Harvey in person—I haven't seen her on the screen—it not what you'd call a Garbo or Dietrich type. She is quite small and blond, and looks rather frail and flowery. According to local pulchritude appraisers, she might be called "pretty" but it not a great beauty.

There are some irregularities in her facial contours—which a prankish camera, for all I know, may shape into a symmetry of feminine charm.

Her tendency towards slenderness gave her some concern. Instead of dieting she must eat to keep up her weight. But there is style to her slight chassis, and she knows how to wear clothes. Off-hand comparisons are always inadequate, but she would seem to be a Connie Bennett rather than a Dietrich—physically.

Miss Harvey is intelligent and versatile. She can make talkies in three languages and walk a tight rope. She goes in for sports—tennis, golf, swimming—and brought over her fast German motor car to satisfy her passion for speed.

She was born in London and has appeared in some English pictures, but her principal film successes were German-made.

His Mistress' Voice

Irene Bensley, the radio warbler, has a cocker spaniel named Niki.

People used to drop in at Irene's when it was time for her to go on the air, just to watch Niki. The pup had the hour down pat, would take his place at the radio and listen for his mistress' voice coming from the studio.

Recently the singer went off the air and left on a vaudeville tour. Niki was left behind.

Those who are caring for him tell me that Niki still goes to the radio every time Irene's old hour rolls around—and is most distressed and puzzled when the familiar voice doesn't come out of the instrument.

These Big City Dogs

The manager of a movie house a little way uptown got a happy idea from seeing so many men and women walking their dogs in the evening. Thought he: "As long as these people are out on the sidewalk, some of them might just as well be dropping in to see my show."

So he had a string of kennels set up in the theater basement, and made this fact known to neighborhood families.

If you know the minds of dog owners, especially New York dog owners, you know that any concession made in the interest of the pups wins their undying gratitude and favor. Sure enough, the dog walkers began to drop in—and one night last week the basement sheltered 20 pups while their owners watched the show.

WOODLANDS A MAJOR ASSET

Nearly 4,000,000 Acres Now Occupied By Farm Woodlands In State.

The farm woodlands of Pennsylvania which now occupy close to 4,000,000 acres, are a valuable asset to the farmers of the state, according to Secretary Lewis E. Staley, department of forests and waters.

Approximately one-half of this vast acreage, according to figures compiled by state forestry officials, is within the farm producing districts, and separate from other so-called wild mountainous areas. Since 1900 the number of farms within the state has decreased enormously and a large proportion of the abandoned farm land is adapted to forest growth.

That the farmers of Pennsylvania believe in forest tree planting is shown by the fact that two-thirds of the 8,500,000 forest tree seedlings distributed by the department for reforestation purposes in 1932 have been planted on waste land or sparsely stocked areas by the farmers of Pennsylvania. Secretary Staley pointed out that the farmers need not wait for young planted forests to mature before they can engage in improved methods of harvesting wood crops. To increase the rate of wood production it is necessary to remove selected trees throughout the forest from time to time by thinning.

LURE OF PRO GOLF STRONG, BUT BYRD PREFERS DIAMOND

Birmingham, Ala. (AP)—One of baseball's premier golfers, Samuel Dewey Byrd, youthful New York Yankee outfielder, has no intention of being lured into professional golf—at least not for several years to come.

"I get a bigger kick out of a single than any golf stroke I could make," said Sam, a day or so after he had equaled the Roebuck course record of 65, six strokes under par for the 6,370 yard layout.

Byrd, who is only 25, figures his best baseball is ahead of him, and he has several more years to worry about his batting average, before he considers what he will do on retirement.

"I don't get steamed up over golf, but baseball—" said Sam, "the chatter of the other fellows, the crowds cheering and razzing, it gets you to going."

"Golf is a fine conditioner. It develops the wrists, keeps the shoulders and legs limbered up through the winter, and it is easier to get

Muzzle-Loader Shooting Matches Still Popular In Missouri Hills

Ste. Genevieve, Mo. (AP)—In the woods near this river town, oldest white settlement west of the Mississippi river, the "first American pastime"—the shooting match with muzzle-loading rifles—is making its last stand.

About 50 of the elongated muzzle-loaders remain in the Ste. Genevieve country, handed down from generation to generation by Ozark hillsmen. Nowhere else save in the Blue Ridge and Big Smoky regions of Tennessee and Kentucky, traveled sportsmen say, are such weapons still in use.

And nowhere except around Ste. Genevieve is the historic shooting match held in the ancient tradition, with quarters of beef and halves of a hog to reward the best marksmen.

The targets are board, painted black, with a cross scratched with a knife point for a bull's eye. By-standers hold coats to shield the rifle sights from the sun, or, when the sun is in front of the shooter, straddle the gun as the marksman lies prone.

At a distance of about 50 yards any shot which fails to touch both lines of the cross has little chance of winning a prize, so accurate are the riflemen of the region.

Only one gunsmith versed in the knowledge of the old muzzle-loaders remains in all the Ste. Genevieve country. He is Henry Hammer, now 75 years old, whose father was a gunsmith before him.

When he passes on, and hillsmen no longer can take their rifles to his shop near Bloomsdale, the shooting matches and muzzle-loaders alike may disappear from the Ozarks.

CLOCK AND WOODPECKER
WARN OF FIRE DANGERS
Charlotte, N. C. (AP)—A clock and a woodpecker are the latest to save North Carolina residents from possible death after their homes had caught fire.

At Scotland Neck, Isaac Smith awoke, much annoyed by the constant drubbing of a woodpecker. He dressed and went downstairs only to find the back part of his house in flames.

At Washington, T. R. Hodges proved he was a light sleeper and when a clock in his room stopped ticking he woke up. He got up to wind the clock and noticed a glare outside his window. Investigating, he too found the rear of his house on fire.

Oh, My Dear!

By ED WHEELAN

By Byron Price
(Chief Of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

To all intents and purposes, the seventy-second congress may be regarded as through. Groggy from its own fantastic gyrations, it appears to have no punch left in its system. It awaits only the final bell on March 4 to retire it from the political arena.

Speaking of it in the past tense— which even many of its own members are very glad to do—Washington is moving ahead to thoughts of the congress that is to come. The question now is: What next?

The first thing to be remembered about the new senate and house is that they were swept into power in the great 1932 upheaval of discontent. And two implications attach to that circumstance.

One is that the unwieldy democratic majorities in both branches were established through election of a ticket headed by Franklin D. Roosevelt and therefore might be expected, normally, to look to him for legislative leadership.

The other is that this will not be a normal congress at all, for it will have in it an extraordinary assortment of newcomers, many of them belonging to far scattered independent wings of the party.

Leadership A Question

How these two considerations will play against each other—that is, whether Mr. Roosevelt can attain a dependable working leadership—is certain to become almost at once the interesting and important question.

The new senate will meet immediately after inauguration to confirm the cabinet appointments. Present plans are to prolong the session to try for ratification of the long-pending world court protocol.

Both houses will assemble in special session a few weeks later, probably in mid-April. Then the door will be open, and all sorts of legislation can be considered.

No one knows now whether the short senate session will see the unusual spectacle of a genuine contest over the cabinet confirmations, but it is possible. What does seem certain is that a bitter debate will center around the world court. That may develop Mr. Roosevelt's whether or not they made much money last season, consolidated their positions and followings to a gratifying extent, says Joe Carr of Columbus, president of the National League.

Joe has been the leader in an uphill struggle to organize the pro game properly, effect better relations with the colleges and fortify the clubs in leading centers of interest. It has now reached the point where there is greater interest, nationally, in the professional gridiron game than ever before.

The addition of Boston to the National league last year proved a smart move. The downfall of the Green Bay Packers, several-times champion, furnished another striking development. It will not be surprising to see one or two additions next season to the league circuit.

Hollywood, Calif. (AP)—If Eleanor Holm has her way she will keep right on competing for swimming championships as an amateur.

Miss Holm, the Olympic Games back stroke swimming champion, was given a film contract at the conclusion of the games in Los Angeles last August.

"My film contract does not call for any swimming," said Miss Holm. "Therefore I am still eligible to compete and will be on hand to defend my national championship in February."

Houston, Tex. (AP)—Houston fans who expressed concern over the departure of Joe (Ducky-Wucky) Medwick to the Cardinals and Homer Peel to the Giants last fall, are feeling better about their club's outfield now.

Gene Moore, former Dallas gardener, has been purchased from Cincinnati. President Fred Ankenman announced. And to add Moore will be Leon Riley, obtained on option from Rochester of the International league, and Ernie Parker, lined up under similar arrangement with the Cardinals.

Having built up Notre Dame's football fences for the next three or four seasons, with special reference to new alliances in the Big Ten, Jess Harper may go back this year to his ranch in southwest Kansas, whence he was recalled to renew his stewardship of Rambler athletics after the death of Knute Rockne.

Jess has done a great job of picking up where the "Rock" left off. Like Tex Rickard, Rockne did a lot of his intercollegiate business "on the cuff." He left a raft of verbal agreements promises and half-promises, but not very much on paper. Consequently Harper had to make a trip around the country at the outset of his job, checking up on just what understandings existed with Rockne and substituting contracts for oral arrangements, as a precautionary measure.

This done and extensive affiliations made for the future of Notre Dam football, Harper may prefer to get back to the wide open spaces, whether or not there is any truth in the understanding he and "Hunk" Anderson have not always been in complete agreement.

At last it is significant that no mention is made of a renewal of Harper's contract, expiring this spring, in connection with the engagement of Anderson as head football coach for 1933.

A Continuous Performance

They don't allow much time for the grass to grow on Pacific Coast gridirons. Here it is the end of January, with games still being played in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Meanwhile the call is out for the start of spring practice by California Golden Bears, under "Navy Bill" Ingram on February 1.

There will be intervals, of course, for other activity to catch the attention and headlines, but football becomes pretty close to a year-round proposition here when you figure that the Bears may extend their 1933 schedule to play Notre Dame as late as December 16.

TO SENTENCE

MAYOR KLINE

Court Reverses Former Jurist And Orders Pittsburgh To Be Sentenced.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 28.—Mayor Charles H. Kline will be ordered to appear in Butler county court for sentence on a charge of irregularities in connection with contracts for municipal supplies, under a decision of the Pennsylvania superior court, sitting at Philadelphia, Wednesday.

The superior court reversed Judge Thomas D. Finletter, of Philadelphia, who presided by special assignment at Mayor Kline's trial and discharged him on a motion for arrest of judgment after the jury had convicted him upon one indictment.

The opinion of the higher court was written by Judge Parker.

In a separate opinion Judge Parker affirmed the conviction and sentence of Colonel Bertram L. Succop, former director of supplies, of Pittsburgh. Succop is ordered to surrender himself in the lower court so that he may be committed.

The commonwealth appealed from Judge Finletter's action in Kline's case. In discharging Kline, Judge Finletter had reasoned that the jury's verdict of guilty upon the one indictment was inconsistent with its conclusions that Kline was not guilty upon another indictment making substantially the same allegations.

Judge Parker quoted with approval a decision of the United States supreme court, holding that consistency in the verdict is not necessary, and that each count in an indictment is regarded as if it was a separate indictment.

He explained, however, that the jury's findings with respect to the two separate indictments were not necessarily inconsistent.

Judge Parker's opinion concluded: "The order, arresting judgment as to the defendant Kline, is reversed and the record remitted with a pre-judgment."

The effect of the decision is that Kline now stands convicted, and the disposition of his case is in Judge Finletter's hands.

Aboriginal Given Fight With Champ

Brisbane, Australia (AP)—Ron Richards—"Warrigal"—a full blooded Australian aboriginal who has had a meteoric ring career in Queensland, has been granted a title fight with Ambrose Palmer, heavyweight champion of Australia.

Lithe as a dingo (wild dog) and as fierce as his forefathers, Richards is more tricky and tenacious than skillful, but expert ringcraft may come with better handling.

His methods remind old timers of the famous aboriginal boxer Jerry Jerome, who trained on beer and carried all before him.

MAROONS LOSE TO HANOVER HI

Local Dribblers Beaten By Ancient Rivals Here Friday Evening.

Gettysburg high school's cagers received a rude setback at the hands of the Hanover high dribblers on the local court Friday evening, the invaders walking off with an easy 40-20 conquest.

With Kintzing, Brady and Sterner leading the assault, the invaders had things pretty much their own way until the final period, when the Maroons shook off their lethargic playing to out-score their rivals.

Hanover started with a rush and piled up a 12-4 decision at the end of the first quarter. Sterner and Kintzing featured the attack in the second quarter that boosted the Orange and Black's margin to 26-9 at half time.

A pair of fouls by Trostle were the only scores by the Maroons in the third frame, which ended with Hanover cut in front, 38-11. Resorting to long range tossing in the final period, the Maroons hiked their total to twenty points, while Hanover was held to a pair of points.

Kintzing carried off the scoring honors of the evening by tallying thirteen points. Trostle and Shearer led Gettysburg's attack.

In the preliminary game the Hanover scrubs handed the Maroon and White dribblers a 21-15 defeat. A bad first period left the locals trailing 6-1 at the close of the period and they were never able to close the gap.

7,000 Illinois Women From Mine District Demand End of Strife

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28 (AP).—Seven thousand women from the Illinois coal fields—old ladies, young mothers and schoolgirls—marched Thursday under a banner that said one word: "Peace."

Their reason for marching, they announced, was to bring public attention to the plight of miners and their families in the war-torn coal mining districts.

Detachments of state and city police stood guard, but they were not needed. They were no disorders.

To Gov. Henry Horner a delegation of women announced the strike between their union, the Progressive Miners of America, and the United Mine Workers had reached an impasse.

The governor complimented them for their orderly demonstration, advised them to seek meditation and pledged continued efforts to bring peace to the coal mining industry.

Eight abreast, the women began marching through downtown streets shortly after noon. At the front walked fifty women without the white headress which the others wore. They were the bereaved widows and daughters of fifty-four miners who died in the Moweaqua mine disaster the day before Christmas.

For forty minutes traffic was tied up as the women marched, eyes straight ahead and solemn, to the Abraham Lincoln monument in front of the state house. Each delegation in the long march carried an American flag and a placard bearing the name of its home town. There were no other banners except the one bearing the single word "peace."

At the monument the marchers disbanded, bands played and the women sang Solidarity Forever and Glory, Glory, Hallelujah.

A delegation of fifty then marched to the reception room of the governor's office. Their spokeswoman handed Governor Horner a petition containing four demands—that civil liberties be restored in the coal fields; that there be an increase and more equal distribution of state aid for the destitute; that unemployment insurance be granted, and that he, as governor, "refuse to further burden the workers by enactment of a sales tax."

"We wish to thank you," the women told Horner, "for the truce which you have made effective in the mining fields. Women and children now can sleep without fear."

Barbers Beat Bigler Cagers

The Varsity Barbers and the Blue Streaks, the latter a recently organized girls' team of Gettysburg, won a doubleheader at Biglerville Friday evening, the boys winning by the one-sided score of 61-19 and the girls, 22-11.

Boistered by several new faces, the Barbers had little trouble in downing the Biglerville aggregation, leading throughout. At half time the score was 20-7.

The Blue Streaks won their initial contest in a nip and tuck affair, 22-21. This aggregation plans to play regularly during the next few weeks.

OLSON'S PLAY WINGS MONDAY

Well Known Professional Dribblers Engage Local Cagers.

Olson's Terrible Swedes, one of the greatest traveling basketball teams in the country, will oppose the Gettysburg Fleet-Wings on the local court Monday night.

The Swedes claim they have one of the best aggregations this year that has ever represented that club and point proudly to their record this season of fifty-one wins and but five losses. Their recent streak of thirty-two straight was halted last Sunday by the Cumberland Cases. However, the Swedes alibi this defeat by stating that they were forced to travel nearly all night from Roanoke, Virginia, in order to fulfill the engagement.

Fleet-Wing fans who are becoming bored with the recent run of easy conquests on the home floor can be assured that they will see one of the fastest games of the season. Manager C. M. Olson of the Swedes states that it will take a super team to down his proteges.

Remaining from last year's team that appeared here are Roy Richeson and Carl Howard, forward and guard respectively. The newcomers are Kendrick, center, Pettigrew and Taitte, guards.

Preliminary to this game New Oxford will clash with the State highway quintet. This game will start at 7:15.

Academy Cagers Beat Bloomsburg

Gettysburg academy's basketballers swung back into their winning stride by defeating Bloomsburg high, at Bloomsburg, Friday evening, 28-18.

The Orange and Blue cagers were out in front most of the way and protected an early lead. Girton and Robbins, guards on the prep squad, are former Bloomsburg high athletes.

SCHOOL QUILTS FOOTBALL: NOW GAME SHOWS PROFIT

Chicago (AP)—Financially, Loyola university made football pay for the first time in years last season—without a varsity team of its own!

Receipts from rental to other teams—professional, college and prep school—made the school's stadium show a profit for the first time since it was built.

But Loyola has abandoned football as an intercollegiate sport.

CLEAR DALE

Clear Dale—Alvin James, who was confined to the house with the grippe, is now suffering from bronchitis.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bucher, of Biglerville, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Luther Spangler and daughter, Mary, of this place, at their home last Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James Stair, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spangler and Luther Spangler were among those from this place who attended the funeral of George Epley, Sunday afternoon at Grace Lutheran church, Two Taverns.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Heiser and sons, Roy and Malcolm, spent Sunday at York, where they visited Mr. Heiser's niece, Miss Edna Baublitz, who is a patient at the York hospital, where she submitted to an appendicitis operation on January 14. Miss Baublitz is reported to be improving.

Addison Stair, who was confined to bed several days last week suffering from grippe, is out again.

Mrs. Theodore F. James was confined to the house last week from an attack of grippe and sore throat.

Miss Thelma Null, of Littlestown, spent the week-end as the guest of Miss Mary James.

Mrs. Calvin S. Myers and daughter, Beatrice, of this place, and Mrs. Harry Rickrode, near Yoost's store, spent Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Spangler.

Oliver Hesson and grandchildren, Helen, Ruth and James Myers, were Wednesday visitors at the home of Mr. Hesson's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hesson, of Spring Mills, Maryland.
